

For Immediate Release

Election Trust

Contact:

John Bodin

425.462.2704

john.bodin@electiontrust.com

Election Trust Serves Up Texas-Sized Ballot in Sugar Land First Colony Community Association Goes Hybrid x 70

Bellevue, WA (December 11, 2011) – Given over 10,000 voters required more than seventy unique ballot styles with variable weighted values and a choice of two voting options - paper mail-in or online ballots - the 2011 annual election for First Colony Community Association (FCCA) was certainly a Texas-sized administrative challenge for Election Trust.

"And they met that challenge with flying colors," said FCCA Executive Director, Doug Earle. "Not only was the end-to-end Hybrid election process handled with great care and professionalism, our overall turnout was up 20% over last year."

Mr. Earle concluded, "We look forward to working with Election Trust again in 2012."

Over the last decade Election Trust has emerged as a leading third party balloting authority for community groups ranging from home and property owner associations like FCCA to Los Angeles public housing governance corporations.

"Whether we are serving the private or public sector, our community group clients rely on us to conduct fair and impartial third party balloting," added John Bodin, Election Trust's Managing Partner. "This enables community administrators to focus on their management of the annual meeting...knowing election controversy will not be on the agenda."

Mr. Bodin added, "We consider such administrative 'pain relief' as one of our value-adds!"

+ + +

About Election Trust (www.electiontrust.com)

Election Trust brings together veteran professionals and proven technology (eVoting Secured by ScytI) to provide efficient and secure Hybrid voting solutions. In the public sector the company works as a technology consultant and integrator to government election administrators. In the private sector Election Trust provides end-to-end 3rd Party balloting management to political parties, unions, associations, cooperatives and home owner groups.

About First Colony Community Association (www.firstcolony.org)

First Colony, a true master-planned community is less than 20 miles from downtown Houston, is a unique blend of residential neighborhoods and businesses with protective architectural guidelines and meticulously maintained streets, lakes, parks, and greenbelts. Beautifully landscaped and well maintained, First Colony offers a spectacle of tree lined streets, miles of walking paths, lush parks, and lakes for truly unlimited recreational opportunities.

###